HFA and Napster Extend Administration Services Agreement

New York, January 12, 2011: The Harry Fox Agency, Inc. (HFA), the nation's leading provider of intellectual property management, licensing, and royalty calculation and distribution services for the music industry has announced the renewal of their agreement to provide Administration Services to Napster, a pioneering online music subscription service. As the nation's largest mechanical licensing agency and the music industry's foremost rights management organization, HFA will continue to provide Napster expedited licensing, reporting, and royalty collections and distributions services.

Maurice Russell, Senior Vice President of Licensing, Collections, and Business Affairs, at HFA commented: "HFA is proud to be providing services to Napster, a groundbreaking influence in digital music. We look forward to continuing to help Napster navigate the challenges of rights management."

Alejandro Borgia, Napster's SVP of Product Marketing commented: "In working with HFA, we are confident our back office operations are being capably handled, allowing us to focus our resources on providing the ultimate music experience to our customers during this exciting time for our company."
